

SUMMER WORKSHOPS

If your children are getting cranky because they are running out of things to do, take a look at our picks of workshops that they will surely enjoy.

Crafts at The Hab by Usha

If your child is more inclined towards arts and crafts, a trip to The Hab by Usha will be money well spent. They hold several workshops where your children can learn to make products such as appliqué bags, crayon holders, hair bands, multi purpose folders and pouches. You can walk in at any time throughout the day and the cost of the session will depend on the activity that you choose.

A TOUCH OF THEATRE

When it comes to entertainment, nothing can beat the experience of watching a play. Our city is blessed with several destinations where you can look forward to plays, culture events and art shows. We tell you about the two best locations and what they have on offer for children this summer:

National Centre for Performing Arts (NCPA)

Located at a picturesque spot, right at the tip of Nariman Point, NCPA is much more than just a theatre. From orchestra and performances to cultural events, the centre plays host to a variety of art events. A day spent here would be perfect, and they always have events organised specially for children. You can look up their schedule on www.ncpamumbai.com.

This weekend: Charlie and the Chocolate Factory (workshop), Rang Rangila Gittu Girgit (Hindi play), Create your own Comics (workshop), English Medium (English and Hindi play), Krishna Kidding (English and Hindi play) and Aladdin's Magical Lamp (English play).

Prithvi Theatre

Just like NCPA, Prithvi Theatre too offers great views of the Arabian Sea and they have equally great offerings on their stage. The historical theatre usually hosts the best that the theatre industry has to offer and is currently also organising theatre workshops for children. Find out more on www.prithvitheatre.org.

This weekend: James Aur Ek Giant Peach (Hindi play) and Wolf (English and Hindi play)
